Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 16 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mild and breezy with showers.

Today:
Dull with rain to start across the region, clearing mid-morning to bright spells around lunchtime. However, heavy showers move in during the afternoon, some turning blustery. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Turning clear for many as any showers lingering in north and east of the region ease during the evening. A band of rain arrives from the west towards dawn. Breezy. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Wednesday:
Grey and murky start as rain pushes through the region, clearing around mid morning giving bright spells for many. Turning cloudier from the south again later, with further rain developing. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Rain on Thursday morning clears to brighter conditions, followed by showers. Winds increase Friday and Saturday as unsettled weather continues with outbreaks of rain mixed with occasional brighter, clearer spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.